THE BLACK HILLS.

GOVEMENTS OF MR. JENNEY'S EXPEDITION-GOLD FOUND IN BMALL QUANTIT BLACK HILLS, DAKOTA, SOUTH OF HARNEY'S PRAK, June 17, via Fort Laramie June 29, 1875.

Our portion of Mr. Jenney's expedition is now encamped at this point. We have come upon several parties of miners, none of whom have been disturbed as yet, though our presence caused great consternation among them. They assured as there was plenty of gold along French Creek, near here. They panned out a few shovelfuls in our presence and obtained a few flakes of the most finely colored gold. The excitement among the soldiers has declined, however, and no one except the unfortunate miners believe that the gold is to be found in any great quantities. Large numbers of treasure seekers are expected here, and it is probable the section will be overrun by them in a short time. Mr. Jenney arrived here this afternoon and reports that his prospecting on Castle Greek had resulted in suding only small particles of gold.

OBITUARY.

FERDINAND L. EX-EMPEROR OF AUSTRIA. By cable despatch, dated Prague, yesterday, we learn that Ferdinand L of Austria died yesterday of lung disease, at the age of eighty-two years. He was the eldest son of Emperor Francis L by his second marriage with Maria Theresa, daughter of Ferdinand IV., King of Naples and of Sicily. His education was intrusted to two incapable tutors, one of whom was constantly afflicted with sickness and the other became demented during the exercise of his functions. The health of the Prince was always feeble. In 1815 he was compelled to travel in Italy, Switzerland and France in order to improve his condition. Subsequently he returned and devoted bimself to the study of technical art and heraldry. He was crowned ti was not a ceremeny which ac-corded with the ancient traditions, and conferred upon him scarcely any real power. On the 27th of February, 1831, he espoused Princess Anne Caroline, daughter of Victor Emmanuel I., King of Sardinia. The following year an attempt was made to assasshate him by a retired captain named Francis Reindl, the would-be assassin believing that he had some private wrongs to averge. Ascending the throne on the death of his fainer, Marcu 2, 1835, he continued his own pecular policy, but leaving the principal direction of affairs to his uncle, the Aronduke Louis, and to the Prince of Metternich. He was subsequently erowned King of Bohemia and Lombardy in 1836 and in 1838 respectively. Under the pressure of the revolutionary movements of the seventher but he declared, through the Duke of Metternich. Anne Caroline, daughter of Victor Emmanuel I., subsequently erowhed king of bosemia and loss-barcy in 1836 and in 1835 respectively. Under the pressure of the revolutionary movements of 1848 he declared, through the buke of Metterolan, pat the new Ministry aione would project and be responsible for a new constitution; but these con-cessions appeared insufficient at Vienna, and the responsible for a new constitution; but these concessious appeared insufficient at Vienna, and the revolt occurred in May, 1848. The Emperor retired at once to innspritch, and would only consent to return to the capital at the pressing invitation of a large delegation of induential citizens. When the second revolt of Vienna occurred, in October, 1843, he established himself at Omnuz, where he practically gave up the reims of government. On December 2 following he formally abdicated in favor of his son-nephew, Prancis Joseph I., and subsequently went to Prague, where he lived up to the time of his death.

PARIS GOSSIP.

THE SUPERSTITIONS OF TRADE-A STORM PER-VAMINABLY TO THE RIVER PLOODS-THE POST-TION AND TONK OF THE PUBLIC PERSS-A JOKE AT M. THIERS-M. BOCHEFORT'S NOTE BOOK.

In spite of 1789 old traditions still make their inquence feit in the common relations of French life, especially in the great business of buying and selling. Thus there is an old superstition that if it rains on the festival of Saint Medard (the 8th of June) it will rain for the next forty days. If, on the other hand, it is fine on Saint Medard's day a drop of rain fell this year on the 8th of June, and it is a fact that the price of corn went up two francs in consequence of the drought which was ansicipated. It should be added that the prediction was faisified in less than twenty-four hours, and yesterday a heavy thunderstorm fell over Paris.

PUBLIC EDUCATION.

Though the liberty of higher instruction is a subject of vital importance to the moral and intellectual welfars of the nation, and one which would raise the keenest discussion in America, it excites little interest here, if one may judge by the contents of the French papers, which seem to be occupied with few other questions. As a specimen of the news to be found in Paristan journals may be mentioned such incidents as these:-"Passing by a shop yesterday M. Tuiers knocked his head against an awning which had been set up. He was so pleased at finding himself, for once in a way, too tall that he immediately entered the shop and made several purchases "

Or one is informed "that M. Glandaz, practising in the Court of Appeal, is a part proprietor of three different theatres, though it is probable that the learned counsel is not particularly anxious that this occumustance should be generally

The same journal has 'Teason to believe that M.

tous that this orioumstance should be generally known."

The same journal has "reason to believe that M. Bomard, the advocate General, is about to resign his place." "M. Buffard," it goes an to say, "was a briefless barrister whom M. Cremieux, Ainhister of Justice after the 4th of September, pitchforked into his present place. Being well off, and giving good duners, he was tolerated for a time; but now he has lost his money, perhaps by gaming," suggests the friendly journal, "and se feels, therefore, that his position is no longer tenable.

Parliamentary Reporting.

In another column some account of the debates in the Assembly will be given, and a funny account it is. Thus, renders are told that—"M. Guichard next ascended the tribune. Fortunately, the thunderstorm which began to fall prevented our hearing the arguments of the honorable member. As it grow dark the gas was lighted, and the House became insufferably hot. M. Guichard drauk a glass of surar and water," &c.

The Gaulois of this morning publishes some curious extracts from a note book found on henrif Rochefort, presumably at the time of his arrest. They reveal a spirit of the fercest fanaticism, thus he is furlous with Juies Favre because the great orator has spoken for five-and-twenty minutes without mentioning the word "Republic," He spurus the idea of giving M. Thiers a trial, if mutes without mentioning the word "Republic," He spurus the idea of giving M. Thiers a trial, if mutes without mentioning the word "Republic," He spurus the idea of giving M. He is very angry with a certain member of the Communists. His head must be struck off at once. He is very angry with a certain member of the Communists.

PIBE CODE OF HONOIL.

It is said that M. Dunaire, the Minister of Justice, contempiates the introduction of a hill against duciling, but is not quite decided whether the penalty ought to consist of a fine or of temporary deprivation of clectoral rights. Very heavy fines might put a stop to the practice, but a Frenchman will hardly regard the loss of his vote as of much consequence to him. It may be doubted whether the time is yet ripe for legishation on this subject, public opinion in France being rather on the side of the ducilists, and the more humane tone of the age has thus far prevailed already, that the seconds almost invariably take care that a combat shall not end fately.

A PANTHLET BY M. EMILE OLLIVIER, of which the preface has just been published, is exciting a good deal of attention. The ex-Minister hopes for a restoration of the Empire such as it was in 1870, rather than in 1852, which seems also a wish for the reign of Napoleon IV., without that strength of the Executive power which is the apoleogy of Bonspartism as a political necessity.

THE SCANDAL.

RUMORS OF FURTHER ARRESTS.

There was a widespread rumor in Brooklyn last night that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Theodore Tilion on a charge of con-spiracy. It was even asserted that the plaintiff in the great scandal case had been taken into custody. Reporters of the HERALD at a late bour last night visited the residences of Messrs. Tracy and Shearman to make inquiries on the subject, but the answers given were in each instance remarkably non-committal.

Mr. Tilton was also visited at his house on Livingston street, at eleven o'clock, and found fully dressed and in his ordinary spirits. He declined, as usual to be interviewed, but remarked, "I have not seen my counsel but once to-day. I have not read any of the newspaper reports. 1 do not know what has been done."

NEW YORK CITY.

The Plymouth Rock will make a special excursion up the Hudson this evening, on which occasion the main deck will be cleared for dancing. Mesars, Jurrett & Paimer's arrangements will sequre the utmost enjoyment for all.

festival of the letter carriers will be held at Jones' Wood to-morrow, July 1. The committee have made arrangements to make the lestival one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season.

LONG ISLAND.

The project of establishing a direct and independent railroad line between New York and Jamaica is now in such a state of forwardness that the speedy success of the enterprise seems assured. Some time ago a Mrs. Beaman and Mr. John Capels were arraigned on a charge for murderous assault upon Capels' wife. They were found guilty of the charge and flued $150 each. Capels paid the flues and yesterday took action against Mrs. Beaman to compet her to pay him the $150 paid by him for her release, but lost the suit.
